Father M. J. McLoughlin Two Weeks Ago Preached on Uncertainties of Life.

ANOINTED OLD PARISHIONER.

Father Kielty to Bury at Pamaibal Former Assistant, Who Had Been His Friend for Forty Years

Life's uncertainties and the necessity of constantly being prepared for death were the central theme of a sermon preached two weeks ago yesterday in the Holy Angels Catholic Church by the Reverend Father M. J. McLoughlin, rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception of Hannibal, Mo., who died at his home Saturday night.

Father McLoughlin was in the city at the time visiting his close friend, the Reverend Father F. M. Kielty, pastor of the Holy Angels Church, whose assistant he was for twenty years.

To add to the dramatic features of his last visit to St. Louis, in view of what has now taken place, Father McLoughlin while here anointed and prepared for death Patrick Cassidy of No. 1834 Papin street. Mr. Cassidy was a parishioner of the Holy Angels Church when Father Mo-Loughlin was ordained, and during the time of the priest's labors at the church

The incident deeply affected Father McLoughlin, and inspired the sermon on death he preached the next day at the Holy Angels Church.
In this sermon Father McLoughlin spoke of the closing of the year, saying that as men in business took a reckoning, so should men sum up their spiritual lives, put their accounts with their Creator in shape and prepare for better things.
He went back to his parish in Hannibal,
where he had been for nineteen years.
Pneumonia came upon him, and last week when typhoid fever made his condition more serious, Father Kielty went to his bedside. The incident deeply affected Father Mc-bedside.

The priests for forty years have been the warmest of friends. Father Kielty, the elder, often said that his funeral should be preached by "Father Mac," as be affectionately called him.

FATHER KIELTY OFFICIATES. Instead of that, Father Kielty will toorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock sing the requiem mass over the body of his friend.

requiem mass over the body of his friend.
Father Kleity was with Father McLoughlin at his first mass, and thus will officiate at his last.

News of the death of the Hannibal pastor has deeply affected St. Louis Catholics, who knew him well. To the older generation of the church he is well known.

Coming to this city when a boy, and making his literary studies at St. Louis University, he became early in life acquainted with influential persons. He took his theological course at the school conducted by the Sulpician Fathers in Montreal, and, returning here, was ordained in the Holy Angele Church by Archbishop Kenrick.

For twenty years he was Father Kielty's assistant, this position being the only charge he ever held except that in Hannibal.

Two weeks ago, when he praached at bal.

Two weeks ago, when he preached at the Holy Angels, he spoke of his work there, saying that of the great congregation, all of whom he once knew by name, he could recognize but a few. There were in his audience the children of many of the former infants he had baptized, and a tinge of sadness permeated the whole address as he talked of the scenes of the past.

Nineteen years ago he went to Hannibal. The charge there is such an important one that long ago it was made an irremovable rectorate. Father McLoughlin built up the Church of the Immaculate Conception until it is one of the strongest of the diocese. The finest rectory out of St. Louis is there, and a splendid convent.

st. Louis is there, and a spendid convent.

He was beloved by the citizens of the town, irrespective of creed or belief. Several years ago, when Mark Twain returned for a triumphal visit to his old home, Father McLoughlin was selected by the citizens to deliver the address of walcome.

As the charge is an irremovable rectorate, the pastorate will be filled only after a concursus is held. Father O'Connor, the assistant at Hannibal, who was formerly Brother Felix of Christian Brothers College here, is not eligible to enter the concursus, as he has been a priest scarcely three years.

One of Father McLoughlin's particular friends in St. Louis was the Reverend Father Lavery of the Holy Rosary Church. Father Lavery yesterday afternoon, in speaking of him, said:

"He was one of the best students of English literature in the diocese. No words of praise can be too strong for him."

ORE SHIPMENTS LESS AND VALUES HIGHER.

Total Output of Lead and Zine Ore $9,452,485, an Increase of $21,505.

Joplin, Mo., Dec. 27 .- The total value of the shipments of sinc and lead from the Joplin district for the year 1908 aggregates $9,452,485, an increase of $21,585 over value of the ore shipments of 1903. Higher values and lower tonnage are the principal features of the year. The average price of lead was $54.10, against an average for 1902 of $46.10, an increase of $8 per ton. Zinc has averaged $33.72 per ton, against $30.33 last year, an increase of 2.39 per ton. The zinc shipments of the year are 27.812 tons behind the shipm of 1962, and the lead shipments are 3,177

On account of Christmas, the mines gen-On account of Christman, the mines generally closed down for the week on Thursday evening, reducing the output of the week one-third, and from a lack of cars the shipment was lessened 25 per cent below the previous week. Zino ore continues in strong demand at 430 to 32 per ton of 60 per cent zinc, and a high price of $35 for fancy bins of ore. Lead ore advanced 25 per ton, selling strong and in stiff demand at 54 per ton. This makes an advance of $4 in two weeks. A year ago zinc sold at the same price, but lead was only $50 per ton, or $4 lower.

It has been asserted by numerous mine operators that this is the first year that the price of sinc ore ever advanced just before the close of the year, and it is assumed that restricting the output brought about this result this year, limiting the supply until it became necessary for the purchasing agents to compete in price for choice grades of ore. The restriction resulted in cleaning up the stock of reserve ore in the bins of producers—at least in reducing the reserve to a point where there remains very little unsold ore. Advance purchases have been made for three weeks now, and nearly every buyer has half of his supply engaged a week ahead.

Following are the shipments of sinc and lead, in pounds, by the companies and individuals owning land or first leases in the various camps of the Joplin district for the week ending December 28, and the total sales for the year 1905:

CRIME ON THE INCREASE IN INDIAN TERRITORY.

There Are 1,366 Persons Under Indictment in His District.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL Washington, Dec. 27.-The wild Western habit of carrying a gun is meeting with grave discouragement out in Indian Territory, according to Doctor Leo E. Bennett, United States Marshal for the Western District of the Territory, who is now in Washington on business connected with the Department of Justice. "Carrying a gun is not so common as it used to be out in our country," said Doctor Bennett. "So many of the boys have had to reach down in their jeans and pay fines of from $100 to $200 and costs that the custom has rather lost its attractions. When a fellow has to settle a bill of that size a few times he is likely to come to the conclusion that a weapon is not absolutely necessary. A man is not allowed to carry a revolver, even in a belt and in plain sight. The only way in which one may carry a revolver is in his hand, and then it must be such a weapon as is used in the United States Army or Navy."

Crims is on the increase, however, rather than declining, and Doctor Bennett has the figures to show it. The large amount of crime in the Western District may be judged from the fact that on December 1, 1993, there were 1,285 persons under indictment. Of these indictments 714 arcsef from violation of the liquor laws; 55 were murder cases. Since Doctor Bennett became Marshal, six years ago, 5,314 offenders have been received in the fail at Muscoge.

Lah-ta-Micco, Chitto Harjo and Crazy Snake were at the head of the Snake uprising known as the Creek war in 1900. About twenty of the leaders were captured and kept in prison for many months on account of this uprising. The charge against them was conspiracy.

The Snakes refuse to recognize the regular council of the Creeks, and declare that they will never submit to anything except what is given them by the treatles with the United States, in which this land is promised them to hold in undisputed possession "so long as grass grows and water runs." In support of this they have maintained a lobby at Washington every year since the Creek agreement, and even now there is a delegation of three full-blood Srake Indians in Washington trying to set the President to intercede in their behalf.

The recent conviction and sen-tence of the wholesale liquor men of Fort tence of the wholesale liquor men of Fort Smith has brought out a new phase of the question. The attorneys for the liquor men have asked for an appeal on the grounds that the liquor laws in force in Indian Territory do not apply in towns where the town sites have been segregated from the lands of the tribes.

Judgé Clayton of the Southern District has held that merchants in such towns are not subject to tribal tax, because they are not subject to tribal tax, because they are no part of the possession of said tribes and receive no benefits or protection from them. The attorneys take the position that under this decision the liquor men are not selling their goods on an Indian reservation, and therefore not subject to the Federal laws.
